Post Top Ad Tuesday, January 30, 2017 Introducing The SmartApp Lounge Digital publishers like Google, Facebook and Microsoft offer a "Smart App" option for small businesses to create applications for their products. They make it easy for you to build applications, offering tools and templates to create and manage your app. Yet, it's a challenging market. It's hard to know what will work best for you and other small businesses. One of the many benefits to having a smart business partner is being able to create an app that works and look great for your business. To make that easier, we're excited to announce The SmartApp Lounge. The SmartApp Lounge is a public app marketplace for small businesses. Our goal is to make it easier for entrepreneurs to find and build the right app for their business. We're partnering with many smart business partners, like Google, to bring the SmartApp Lounge to life. Soon, you'll be able to see many of our partner apps in the lounge, along with many more from our other partner apps. You can learn more about The SmartApp Lounge here. If you are a partner, check out the tools and information here.Q: Arithmetic computation in XQuery I need to find the difference between two sums in XQuery. I need to take the current value of one, and add it to the next to get a new value. For example: declare @a as number declare @b as number select @a = 4 select @b = 5 select @a + @b = 9 How can I compute 9 in an XQuery expression? A: The XQuery expression select @a + @b yields 9 as expected, because in XQuery numbers are implemented as IEEE754 double-precision floating-point numbers. IEEE754 floating-point numbers can be expressed as a pair of a number, which is the significand, and an exponent, which is 82157476af
